About the Cover: Located along the Baja California peninsula near Cabo San Lucas, Cabo Pulmo National Park is home to a staggering quantity and diversity of marine life, including endangered whale sharks, five species of sea turtles, whales, and a host of sportfish. Because of its importance to these threatened marine species, Cabo Pulmo was added as a UNESCO World Heritage Biodiversity site in 2005. Despite this designation, this 20,000-year-old coral reef is now threatened due to a proposed development called Cabo Cortes. A coalition of Foundation grantees and partners including: Amigos para la Conservación de Cabo Pulmo (ACCP); Sociedad de Historía Natural Niparajá; Pronatura Noroeste; Fondo Mexicano para la Conservación de la Naturaleza; Centro Mexicano para la Defensa Ambiental (CEMDA); Defensa Ambiental del Noroeste (DAN); InterAmerican Association for Environmental Defense (AIDA); CostaSalvaje and the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) have come together to save this priceless marine habitat for future generations. Photo Credit: Octavio Aburto / iLCP.

MISSION:

The International Community Foundation seeks to inspire international charitable giving by U.S. donors, with an emphasis on Mexico and Latin America.

VISION:

The International Community Foundation seeks to increase health, education and environmental grantmaking to local organizations in Mexico and Latin America, with the goal of strengthening civil society and promoting sustainable communities.

VALUES

- Commitment – to honor donors and their vision to create sustainable communities throughout Mexico and Latin America, and to respond effectively to the challenges and opportunities present in the region today and in the future.
- Expertise and Knowledge – to make good decisions based on the Foundation's technical, programmatic, and local expertise, maximizing the success of donors' social investments. The Foundation will share this knowledge widely, encouraging participation and new ideas from donors, grantees and other partners.
- Integrity – to uphold the highest possible standards in international grantmaking. The Foundation will honor donor intent and privacy commitments. The Foundation will integrate a high level of ethics, integrity and transparency in all of its work.
- Stewardship – to create lasting improvements in education, health and the environment in Mexico and Latin America, building stronger civil society organizations, better managed marine and terrestrial ecosystems, healthier communities and effective education systems. The International Community Foundation will safeguard donor intent and the resources entrusted to the Foundation.
- Collaboration – to transform passion into results through strategic partnerships, teamwork and pooling of resources.

LEADERSHIP MESSAGE

Dear Donors and Friends,

With two decades behind us, the International Community Foundation is beginning a new era of giving and creating. In early 2011, we grew our professional team of staff and advisors to enable the Foundation to fulfill its strategic goals over the next five years.

The immeasurable thought and planning that went into the Foundation's strategic framework was in large part due to the leadership provided by our Immediate Past Board Chair, Cheryl Hammond, and the dedication of a core group of committed board members and advisory board members that formed the Foundation's strategic planning task force.

Key elements of the International Community Foundation's strategic framework include:

1. Expand and Diversify Giving to Mexico and Latin America: The International Community Foundation will inspire and engage existing and new donors to expand their charitable giving internationally with an emphasis on Mexico and Latin America.

2. Expand Philanthropic Services for Donors: The International Community Foundation will develop and implement a plan to enhance its service offerings to include creative new possibilities for targeted donors, such as the donation of foreign real estate and cross-border estate planning options.

3. Focus Programmatically: The International Community Foundation will strengthen its focus on three key program areas: education, environment and health to secure and sustain funding for high-impact initiatives in Mexico and Latin America.

4. Grow Foundation Endowment: The International Community Foundation will grow its endowment by at least $5 million within the next 5 years to further the Foundation's mission and promote the long-term sustainability of the non-U.S. charities it supports.

5. Maximize Organizational Efficiency: The International Community Foundation will develop and implement a comprehensive plan to upgrade systems and automate manual processes.

As we look toward the coming year, the International Community Foundation remains committed to its partner charities and donors to help them make lasting social investments in their communities internationally.

Sincerely,

Richard Kiy

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dear Supporters and Friends:

The 2011 fiscal year served as an important turning point for the International Community Foundation. During the past year, we celebrated many successes, expanded our grantmaking in new programmatic areas, confronted new challenges in the philanthropic landscape and made important organizational changes to better serve you, our donors and supporters.

This past October, we celebrated our Foundation's 20th anniversary with our "Giving Without Borders" gala celebration. We also joined our sister foundation, Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad, to celebrate their 10th anniversary with their two-week-long Tijuana Innovadora event.

Over the past year, a total of $4.6 million in grants were issued by the International Community Foundation to non-U.S. charities in Mexico and Latin America as well as some U.S. charities with internationally-focused missions.

Important programmatic strides were also made toward initiating the Foundation's cross-border, public-private nonprofit partnership to improve diabetes-related health outcomes in Tijuana through our Dulce Wireless Tijuana project. This project was made possible thanks to the generosity of Qualcomm's Wireless Reach program, IUSACELL, and our other project partners: UABC, Fronteras Unidas Pro Salud, IMSS and Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad. Partnering with other U.S. and Mexican nonprofit organizations, we stepped up our efforts to raise monies to protect and preserve Cabo Pulmo, a fragile national marine-protected area located 60 miles north of Cabo San Lucas in the Gulf of Baja California which is threatened by coastal development.

Thanks to the generous support of the California Wellness Foundation, the International Community Foundation continued its community-based leadership to address the challenges of tuberculosis in the California-Baja California border region. As a first step, our Foundation established the TB Fund for the Californias and provided initial bridge grant funding for TB testing in Tijuana and Mexicali.

Our Foundation also continued its efforts to better understand the impacts of U.S. retirees and second-home investment in Mexico with the publication entitled "Greening of U.S. Retirement Destinations in Mexico: Emerging Issues and Trends in Coastal Communities." Due to growing interest in our Foundation's research, we initiated efforts to educate and inform Mexican policymakers about our key findings.

Working together with two San Diego-area teens, Morgan Hicks and Caitlin Hird, our Foundation also recently launched a youth international charitable giving program to better engage youth in international charitable giving and volunteerism.

The International Community Foundation also made important organizational strides through: the completion of our strategic plan thanks to the leadership of our Immediate Past Board Chair Cheryl Hammond; improvements to our information technology platform to better serve our donors informational needs; the addition of three new board members: Deborah Riner, John McNeece and Ed Mracek, as well as the hiring of three new staffers: Denisse Roldán Newell, Director of Development & Communications, Courtney Corle, Program Officer for Health, and Yahaira Hudson, Administrative Assistant and Gifts Administrator.

As our Foundation positions itself for its next decade, our staff and board share a commitment to better serve your needs while successfully carrying out our mission to expand charitable giving to nonprofits and communities in Mexico and Latin America.

Thank you for your ongoing support.

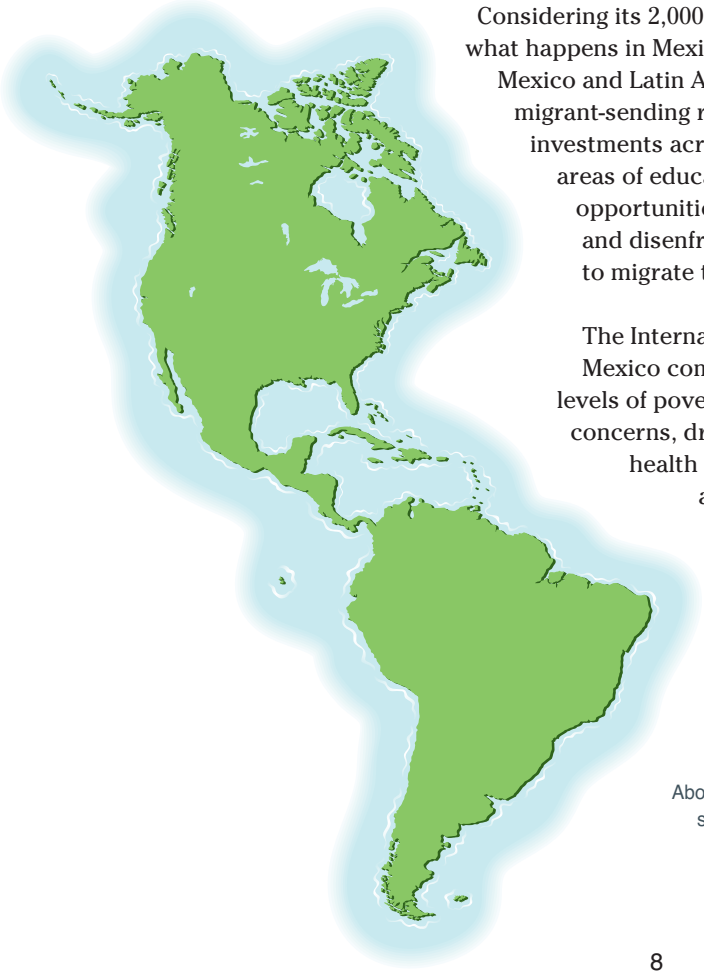
GIVING TO MEXICO & LATIN AMERICA



Considering its 2,000 shared-mile border with the United States, what happens in Mexico truly matters to this country. Similarly, Mexico and Latin America represent the single largest contiguous migrant-sending region to the United States. Strategic social investments across Latin America and especially Mexico in the areas of education, health and the environment can offer opportunities and hope to some of the most marginalized and disenfranchised people who might otherwise choose to migrate to the United States.

The International Community Foundation's focus on Mexico comes at a time when Mexico is facing growing levels of poverty, human migration pressures, public safety concerns, drug-related violence, environmental and public health challenges, and natural disasters. The need for a strong and vibrant independent sector that promotes transparency, accountability and the rule of law, as well as expands civil society's engagement in Mexico, is needed now more than ever.

Above: Project Amigo promotes literacy and education through the support of the GROW fund in Cerro de Ortega, Colima, Mexico.

OUR "INTERNATIONAL" COMMUNITY

The International Community Foundation is unique among U.S. community foundations. Unlike the majority of U.S. community foundations which are focused on a defined specific geographic area of the United States, the International Community Foundation is committed to meeting the charitable giving needs of U.S. donors in their adopted communities or communities of origin internationally, with an emphasis on Mexico and Latin America.

While the focus of its grantmaking is international, the International Community Foundation also supports U.S.-based charities and academic institutions committed to addressing the unique trans-boundary environmental, health, educational and social challenges of the ever-changing California-Mexico border region.

Responding to the growing number of Americans now retired or with second homes in Mexico and Central America, the International Community Foundation is also a committed partner of the U.S. expatriate community offering philanthropic support and guidance to those wishing to give back to charities in their adopted communities.

The International Community Foundation also serves as an important resource for New American immigrant donors wishing to give back to their communities or countries of origin throughout Mexico and Latin America.

Regionally, the International Community Foundation is committed to addressing the needs of underserved children and their families in the border community of National City, California, through its Type 1 supporting organization, Olivewood Gardens.

Immediately across the border in Tijuana, the Foundation works closely with the Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad, an organization established in 2000 by the International Community Foundation to expand philanthropy among Mexican donors to benefit the communities of Baja California.

PROGRAMMATIC PRIORITIES

The International Community Foundation is Committed to Solving Environmental Challenges throughout Mexico and Latin America

The International Community Foundation believes that strengthening of environmental nonprofits will result in long-term biodiversity protection in Mexico and Latin America. The International Community Foundation works hand-in-hand with these organizations to find and reach out to new donors, launch challenge grants and promote their work through events, newsletters and site visits.

Baja Waterkeeper Network

Donor Profile
Anonymous (3) + 2 = 6 Keepers

When looking at an annual report from the International Community Foundation, one will often see a donor listed as "Anonymous." This is the story of five donors that pooled their resources to support six organizations that work on testing water quality, monitoring coastal development, environmental education and media campaigns along the Baja California peninsula.

In 2005, Environment Now approached the International Community Foundation to open a donor-advised fund to support new organizations working as "waterkeepers," using the model developed in the U.S. to protect rivers, bays and coastlines. These new organizations have helped eliminate sources of pollution in coastal waters, preventing damage to coastal areas from poor land-use planning, and have worked with local residents to educate them about the importance of mangroves and wetlands, as well as elevating the discourse on water quality along local shorelines along the Baja California peninsula.

Environment Now teamed up with the Sandler Family Foundation and three anonymous donors to finance small operational budgets for each group, which were based in Loreto, La Paz, Magdalena Bay, and Bahia de los Angeles. Two more groups joined later from Tijuana and Los Cabos. By 2010, there were six active groups along the Baja California peninsula, and several more interested in joining the newly-formed Baja Keeper Network. Several of the groups opened "friends of" funds with the International Community Foundation to encourage donors to contribute.

On the five-year anniversary of this initiative, Environment Now convened a meeting to discuss a regional strategic plan for the network, as well as to develop recommendations for improving water quality reporting and policy reform. A job description for a Regional Coordinator has been developed and several donors are considering pooling their resources again to bring in technical support for the water quality monitoring program. Both the International Community Foundation and its sister foundation in Tijuana, Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad (FIC), have opened special project funds to increase funding opportunities for Baja's "waterkeeper" network as they grow.

Finally, the International Community Foundation is pleased to announce that the first three-year grant for a "waterkeeper" program has just been made possible by an anonymous donor.

PROGRAMMATIC PRIORITIES

The International Community Foundation Forges Partnerships to Address Critical Public Health Issues Across Mexico

What happens in Tijuana directly affects San Diego and the rest of California, as the San Diego-Tijuana border crossing is the busiest in the world. From raising money to vaccinating young girls against HPV in Tijuana, to tackling diabetes in Tijuana using wireless technology, the International Community Foundation is focused on improving public health conditions in the border region.

The International Community Foundation plans to leverage its expertise in Mexico and its residence in the San Diego-Tijuana border region to channel funds to worthy health-centered organizations, especially those dealing with infectious diseases, such as TB, HIV/AIDS, and HPV or chronic diseases like diabetes.

The International Community Foundation will also continue to position itself as a premier organization for development and value-added services to smaller nonprofits in the health community. Although its initial health focus is local, the Foundation expects to soon expand its reach and reputation for leadership in health to all of Mexico and Latin America.

Donor Profile

At Only 17, Caitlin Hird is Already a Philanthropic Leader and Hero

Caitlin Hird is a high school student in the San Diego area who is making headlines in an extraordinary way. In October, she was featured on the front page of the San Diego Union Tribune and in her local community newspaper celebrating her philanthropic work in Tijuana. In November, Caitlin was chosen as NBC San Diego's Student of the Month.

Caitlin first came to the International Community Foundation in 2010 seeking experience in international charitable work. Little did she know that the experience she would gain at the Foundation would ignite a passion to protect poor indigent girls against cervical cancer. It was during a visit to the Escuela Primaria Bilingüe in the Valle Verde Community of Tijuana where she learned that in the last eight years, five families had lost a female relative to cervical cancer. Caitlin was moved by these deaths because she had received the HPV vaccine and had taken it for granted. Faced with this tragic reality, Caitlin formalized a partnership with Tijuana-based Fronteras Unidas Pro Salud and established the "Teens Against Cervical Cancer" fund at the International Community Foundation.

To date, Caitlin has raised $17,245, enough money to vaccinate more than 95 girls. Her goal is to raise $18,000, which will vaccinate 100 girls. Through her allegiance to this community and with support from International Community Foundation's donors and friends, Caitlin is steadily on her way to reaching her goal.

Grantee Profile

Fronteras Unidas Pro Salud Promotes Quality Access to Healthcare for Tijuana's Vulnerable Populations Through Door-to-Door Service

Led by Clinic Director Marcela Merino, Fronteras Unidas Pro Salud is the result of a collaboration between Fundación Mexicana para la Planificación Familiar (MEXFAM, the Mexican Foundation for Family Planning) and Planned Parenthood of San Diego & Riverside Counties (PPSDRC).

Their mission is to provide basic medical attention as well as medical and educational services related to sexual and reproductive health to low-income families in Baja California, and to train and educate men and women so that they can take charge of their own reproductive health and the health of their children.

The clinic staffs volunteer 'promotoras,' including teens, working on the promotion of the clinic's community health programs in neighborhoods in Tijuana and Rosarito. Fronteras Unidas Pro Salud also hosts community clinics, including the clinic in Valle Verde, which has made headlines as a result of teen philanthropist Caitlin Hird and her promotion of the HPV vaccine.

The International Community Foundation recognizes the importance of addressing emerging and long-standing health issues along the border region, including the growing childhood obesity epidemic, women's reproductive health issues, health education and nutrition, childhood cancers, and access to healthcare. As the International Community Foundation strives to increase charitable giving throughout Mexico and Latin America, it is the Foundation's duty to connect philanthropists who share its interests in health so that the Foundation may increase its discretionary grantmaking funds. The goal is to provide critical funding to the many organizations doing important health-focused work.

PROGRAMMATIC PRIORITIES

The International Community Foundation is Committed to Expanding Educational Opportunities for Disadvantaged Children

Education plays a key role in solving the world's most vital challenges. The International Community Foundation is committed to supporting education-focused nonprofit organizations and academic institutions in Mexico and Latin America by expanding the number of U.S. donors that are making social investments in education-based causes.

Looking toward the future, the International Community Foundation is working to increase its discretionary grant funding to maximize the impact on the communities that the Foundation serves, by empowering children and youth through expanded educational opportunities, breaking the cycle of illiteracy and poverty.

Donor Profile

Classical Guitarist Pablo Sainz Villegas Helps Children Overcome Obstacles Through Music

In 2009, world-renowned Spanish classical guitarist Pablo Sainz Villegas, with the support of one of the Foundation's corporate donors, Sempra Energy, partnered with the International Community Foundation to host a benefit concert to raise funds to further the Foundation's mission.

The event's success transpired into what would turn out to be an inspiring week-long project called "Music Without Borders." The project consisted of three complimentary concerts in schools throughout the southern region of San Diego, engaging more than 700 disadvantaged Latino students and members of their communities.

Pablo was so deeply moved by this experience that it inspired him to create the "Music Without Borders Legacy" donor-advised fund at the International Community Foundation, to leverage the inspirational power of classical music to build self-expression and self-esteem among children of disadvantaged backgrounds.

To further the mission of the Music Without Borders fund, Pablo partnered with Foundation grantee Fundación para la Protección de la Niñez to support classical guitar, choir, and musical expression classes benefiting children at local educational institutions in Tijuana.

The International Community Foundation is proud to support the efforts of Pablo's Music Without Borders Fund. It is through these efforts that many underprivileged children and youth in the San Diego-Tijuana border region have a safe and positive alternative for after-school activities.

Grantee Profile

The Fundación para la Protección de la Niñez Promotes Strategic Partnerships to Support Mexico's Most Impoverished Populations

For twenty years, the Fundación para la Protección de la Niñez has worked to promote a collaboration among public and private partners, and the community at large to channel charitable support, and other in-kind social services to benefit underprivileged children and youth.

With offices in Tijuana and Mexico City, the Fundación Para la Protección de la Niñez is able to provide services in education, institutional development, elder care, health, arts & culture and human rights.

Earlier this year, the Fundación para la Protección de la Niñez was the recipient of a benefit concert featuring International Community Foundation donor-advisor Pablo Sainz Villegas in San Diego. The event drew crowds from San Diego and Tijuana to support the organization's music program.

The International Community Foundation has supported the Fundación para la Protección de la Niñez since 2004, and will continue to seek out donors committed to supporting expanded educational opportunities in Mexico.

STRATEGIC PARTNERS

OLIVEWOOD GARDENS

Olivewood Gardens and Learning Center is a Type 1 supporting non-profit organization of the International Community Foundation located in National City, which features a community garden resource facility.

The International Community Foundation is proud of its connection with Olivewood Gardens, and the important role that this unique community asset plays. Olivewood Gardens not only promotes healthier communities in San Diego's South County region, but also serves as an important convening location for the Foundation to expand civic engagement and philanthropy in the San Diego-Baja California region.

STRATEGIC PARTNERS

The Fundación Internaciónal de la Comunidad (FIC) was established in 2000 by the International Community Foundation as an independent public foundation to increase charitable giving by Mexicans in Baja California.

FUNDACION INTERNACIONAL DE LA COMUNIDAD

The Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad (FIC) was established in 2000 by the International Community Foundation as an independent Mexican public foundation. Its goal is to increase the level of charitable giving by the citizens of Baja California in the areas of grassroots community development as well as building financial and operational transparency in Mexican nonprofit organizations.

Throughout the years, FIC has served as a strategic partner of the International Community Foundation's efforts by supporting a wide range of joint programmatic initiatives. Over the past year, FIC has collaborated with the Foundation on environmental projects along the Baja California peninsula through the Baja Coastkeeper Fund, diabetes management through the Dulce Wireless Tijuana project, educational scholarships and most recently in assisting Mexican donors to give to U.S. academic institutions. For its part, the International Community Foundation also contributed to the facility improvements for FIC's new headquarter facilities in the Mesa de Otay region of Tijuana.

In 2010, FIC was also instrumental in bringing to Tijuana the inaugural Tijuana Innovadora conference, which brought together binational leaders from the U.S. and Mexico, including U.S. Vice President Al Gore, Twitter founder Biz Stone, media personality Larry King, Wikipedia founder Jimmy Wales and chairman and CEO of Telmex, Carlos Slim, to address critical issues on transnational trade and commerce.

The second edition of the Tijuana Innovadora conference is scheduled to take place in the fall of 2012.

LEAVE AN INTERNATIONAL LEGACY

Have You Thought About the Future?

- Are your loved ones well cared for?
- Will your property pass to your intended beneficiaries?
- Will your estate avoid unnecessary taxes?

Some people think that the future will take care of itself. Many wait until it's too late to plan for the unexpected. Thinking about the future now is important to ensure that your intentions are followed.

Planning for your legacy is an exciting time for you, your family and the future of your favorite charitable cause and international community.

The International Community Foundation's website features valuable ideas on ways to plan for the future and receive benefits such as U.S. tax savings and life income while you make a difference in Mexico or Latin America. There are also helpful articles on personal planning with tips for organizing your finances and estate.

For more information on the benefits of creating a will or trust, please contact Denisse Roldán Newell, Director of Development & Communications at denisse@icfdn.org, (619) 336-2253.
